K C Police Bill Up In The State Senate Today

Opposition In Pleas To Keep Home Rule

JEFFERSON CITY, May 25—(AP)—Backers of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's Kansas City Police bill in the Senate Municipal Corporations committee went to bat today for quick action on the measure in a delayed executive session set for late this afternoon.

The committee was closeted behind locked doors for an hour last night following a lengthy plea for defeat of the bill by Kansas City opponents but emerged with the announcement of "no action."

It was understood Sen. M. E. Casey (D), Kansas City, bitter administration foe, caused the delay by insisting the committee study a mass of documentary evidence presented by Mayor Bryce B. Smith of Kansas City, and Price Wickersham, who is in charge of the opposition's case.

Mayor Smith, making his first appearance here in the extended fight over the bill, and Wickersham told the committee "Kansas City is now one of the cleanest cities in the United States."

"If we can retain home rule of our police, we'll keep Kansas City clean," the mayor declared.

A different note was struck by Clif Langsdale, attorney for the State Federation of Labor, in the closing moments of the hearing.

Urged to speak by Sen. Casey, Langsdale addressed "a warning to you democrats on this committee."

"If you pass this bill you'll turn Missouri into the Republican column in 1940," he said.

"You're going to need our organization some day and if you pass this bill you are playing right into the hands of those who are trying to destroy it.

"Old Democrats like Mr. Wickersham and myself won't follow some of these cranks who seem to be on top of the wave. If you want to put the state into the Republican column pass this bill and in 1940 you'll be as sorry as we're going to be when you pass it."

Says City Is Clean

Mayor Bryce B. Smith told the Senate Municipal Corporations committee late Wednesday "Kansas City is now one of the cleanest cities in the United States" and pledged:

"If we can retain home rule of our police, we'll keep Kansas City clean."

It was the mayor's first appearance in the legislative arena of the bitter fight over the bill to place his city's police under control of a board appointed by the governor.

City Manager Eugene Zachman, Smith's former secretary and Acting Police Director William Boyle repeated to the committee the mayor's pledge.

Is Questioned Sharply

The short, gray haired mayor was subjected to sharp questioning by Sen. Francis Smith (D), St. Joseph, one of the announced leaders in the Senate fight for the police bill.

His statement that "I concentrated on the police when I started my clean up," brought from Senator Smith the query:

"Why did you concentrate on the police?"

"Why, because this bill was coming up," the mayor answered. "And there were several activities of the police department of which I disapproved—such as its singing and elocution schools. I thought the men ought to be walking beats instead of wasting time in outside activities."

"Is that why the former police director (Otto P. Higgins) was removed?" the senator asked.

"He resigned," the mayor insisted, but added, "We were glad of it."

Senator Smith probed into Smith's role in the city's government before his assumption of unusual powers six weeks ago:

"As a voting member of the council, you concurred in the choice and retention in office of the former city manager (H. F. McElroy) who in turn appointed the police director—isn't that right?"

"Yes," conceded the mayor, "however the council had no direct control over the police department."

"But the council was, through its control of the city manager, the ultimate authority over the police," Senator Smith flatly rejoined.

WASHINGTON, May 25—(AP)—The national munitions control board made highly prized American helium gas limitedly available to other countries today for peace time purposes.

Tells Kiwanians Of Tax Problems

Joe Zack Miller III, vice president of the Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City, gave a talk on "What Do You Think," about governmental and tax problems before the Sedalia Kiwanis club meeting in Bothwell hotel Thursday noon. His contention was that many of the new laws passed are not sound or workable because those responsible for their authorship and passage "don't think things through." "What we need is to send brighter men to Washington, or else punch the ones who are there," he declared.

The speaker was introduced by W. F. Keyser, program chairman.

Club guests were: L. A. Van Dyke, former Smith-Cotton high school principal, now with the state department of education; and George McLaughlin, Wichita, Kansas.

Taxi Driver Kidnaped And His Cab Taken

Ellis Brown Is Released By Two Men North Of Here

Ellis Brown, taxi driver for the Service Cab Co., was kidnaped between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night by two unidentified men, who fled in his cab after they had later released him about twelve miles north of Sedalia.

The men, after getting in Brown's taxi and asking him to drive them to the "1200 block on Sixth street," then ordered him to take them north on highway 65. After going in that direction for about 12 miles, they told him to turn off on the Hughesville road.

Take $1.80 From Him

After driving down this road a short distance, the men had him turn around again and drive back towards highway 65. When they had almost reached the highway again, the men ordered Brown to stop, took $1.80 in cash from him and drove off, saying, "We will take this thing back to Sedalia."

Brown reports that they turned north on highway 65 after leaving him, instead of in the direction of Sedalia.

The first knowledge Brown had that he was being kidnaped came when he had driven the men onto Sixth street. Then one of them told him, so that he couldn't see into the back seat.

Are Frank About It

"We are stealing the car," the man said.

"I never did see a gun on them," Brown said after getting back to Sedalia late last night. "But I heard one of them twirl the cylinder of a gun when he told me not to look back."

A report was made to the police and also to the State Highway patrol. A radiocast was sent out to all patrolmen on the stolen car.

Car Is Found Today

State Trooper Lester V. Estes reported to the police shortly afternoon today the Ford sedan which was taken by the thieves was found at Warrenton, Mo., on highway 40 this morning. The car, it was said, was in good condition.

Vetoes Cattle Rustling Bill

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, vetoing a federal cattle-rustling bill, indicated Wednesday the limit to which he thought the government should go in extending its police powers.

With his hearty approval, he said in a veto message to the senate, congress had enacted legislation taking jurisdiction over such major offenses as kidnaping and bank holdups and thefts involving property valued at $5,000 or more.

"This (cattle theft) bill, however, extends this extension of jurisdiction to bring within its terms numerous offenses of the petty larceny type," he said.

"I am compelled, therefore, to ask the question: Why does the federal government extend its jurisdiction over any stolen cattle, hogs, sheep, horses, mule or the carcass or hide of any such stolen animal, and, at the same time, leave out all other forms of stolen property of comparatively low value?

"Why not by the same theory extend federal jurisdiction to the theft of all other kinds of personal property—property of a value which makes the theft a misdemeanor rather than a crime?"

Would-Be Bandits Gun Saves His Life

KANSAS CITY, May 25—(AP)—A would-be bandit's gun saved his life here early today.

Elmer J. Borgstadt, cab driver, lunged forward and wrestled the weapon from his passenger when the man announced "this is a holdup."

The bandit fled. Borgstadt drew a bead and squeezed the trigger. The gun wasn't loaded.

Three Guilty In Poison Killings For Insurance

Seven Others In 'Not Guilty' Pleas At Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, May 25—(AP)—Three defendants in the wholesale insurance murder cases pleaded guilty today and seven others pleaded innocent when arraigned together on charges of murder and manslaughter in the deaths of five men.

Those pleading guilty will appear before a court of three judges, who will hear evidence and fix punishment.

The seven who denied any guilt will be tried, perhaps in groups, The trials were expected to start next week.

Morris Bolber, who detectives charge was an "executive" of the wide-spread syndicate, was the first brought before Judge Albert S. C. Millar.

Gazing straight forward as a clerk read the bills of indictment, he pleaded "guilty generally" to the murder of Roman Mandiuk, a baker. Mandiuk's exhumed body showed traces of four poisons.

Bolber pleaded innocent, however, to an indictment, charging him with a part in the drowning of Rafaele Caruso, a cripple.

David Brandt, bespectacled little typewriter salesman, indicted also in Mandiuk's death, almost shouted "Not Guilty" to the accusations.

Mandiuk's widow, Agnes, also denied she had a part in her husband's death. Wearing a jaunty hat and a blue dress with white polkadots, the tall widow replied in a quiet voice.

Accused In Drowning.

Tearful and shaking, Mrs. Christinia Cerrone was led before the court to answer murder and manslaughter charges in the Caruso drowning. Caruso, a boarder in her home, drowned in the Schuylkill river several years ago.

His landlady shook her head vigorously and pleaded innocent through a court reporter. She spoke Italian.

The next plea of guilty came from Samuel Sortino. He also spoke Italian as he acknowledged charges that he participated in Caruso's drowning.

Cesare Valenti, huge Italian who came to the United States thirty years ago, entered a plea of innocent to all indictments charging him with the murder of Charles Favato, common-law mate of a widow who previously pleaded guilty to poisoning him, her stepson, and another man.

Murder and manslaughter indictments in the Caruso drowning also were read to Paul Petrillo, little South Philadelphia tailor who detectives charge practiced witchcraft as a mask for plotting insurance killings.

Petrillo pleaded innocent on each count.

The commonwealth next lined up Rafael Polselli and Amedeo Muscelli on blanket charges of murdering Giuseppe di Martino, whose widow is among seventeen in custody who have not been arraigned.

Polselli pleaded guilty but Muscelli pleaded innocent to the murder charge and remained silent to the manslaughter indictments.

Polselli then was accused of a part in the Favato death. He pleaded guilty to all indictments in this case.

Another widow, Mrs. Josephine Romualdo, was the last to be arraigned. She pleaded innocent to charges that she killed her husband, Antonio, a lamp-lighter.

Meantime another prisoner, an oft-married widow known to police as "Rose of Death," was confined to a hospital after what police Captain James Kelly said was a three-day "hunger-and-thirst" strike in protest against her arrest.

Welcome Rain Falls Here

Rain, badly needed for the gardens and crops, fell in Sedalia and immediate vicinity today. It began falling about the middle of the morning in the city and by noon the .21 inches of moisture to that hour was very beneficial. although farmers and others were hoping there would be a steady downpour all afternoon. It was a slow steady rain and soaked into the ground, and continued most of the afternoon.

Corn and oats were beginning to feel the need of moisture and it will prove helpful to those two crops, although it was most welcome for gardens.

At the Sedalia water works plant, south of Sedalia, this afternoon it was said they had a splendid rain, but it was not so plentiful in other sections of the county.

Smithton had only light showers, more of a fine mist than rain. Houstonia had light showers and at Green Ridge it was hardly more than enough to settle the dust. LaMonte had a heavier rain than any of the small towns, but much less than the amount that fell in Sedalia.

Annual Flower Show A Success

Displays Made Attractive—Ribbons Were Awarded

Sedalia's fourth annual flower show, held at convention hall, Liberty park, Wednesday, was an occasion for a gathering of flower lovers, not only of Sedalia, but many surrounding towns, and some from Texas, California and Oklahoma.

Mrs. G. W. Chambers, general chairman, and her committee composed of members of all garden circles, felt amply repaid by the attendance and many expressions of pleasure at the beautiful display.

The show this year was earlier than last year, which was in the middle of June, therefore there were not as many entries, but the quality, according to the judges, was superior.

The show was judged by Mrs. Chas. W. Schneitter, Miss Elizabeth Eckel, Miss Mary Bullard and Mrs. B. F. Melcher, all of Warrensburg. At noon these judges were complimented at a luncheon at Hotel Bothwell, attended by fourteen garden club members. Ribbons were placed on winning exhibits.

The arrangement of the flowers was especially attractive this year, and the addition of commercial exhibits added to the show. Particularly outstanding was the rose exhibit display in the junior ex-

Real Heroism In The Rescue

Suspended Rescue Bell To Surface After A Halt

By Gregory Hewlett

ABOARD U. S. S. BROOKLYN, AT SCENE OF SQUALUS DISASTER, May 25—(AP)—(by radio)—In a scene of Hollywoodian aspect, highlighted by real heroism and courage, the navy enacted one of the most dramatic true life stories in history of its rescue of 33 men from the stricken submarine Squalus.

All through a long day the big rescue bell rose and fell, rose and fell, rose and fell again. Then suddenly as the darkness descended the chamber fell once more—and did not come up. The rescue flotilla became tense with dread again.

Overhead stars shown brightly down. A slender moon lighted the sea faintly, the water was calm. Hours passed. Lights flickered from ships, signal flashes stabbed the horizon and floodlights lit up the scene like a stage. But this

Graphic Story Related On Rescue From Squalus

CHICAGO, May 25—(AP)—The Chicago Tribune published today a copyrighted interview with Lieut. John C. Nichols, a Chicagoan who was rescued from the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H.

Lieut. Nichols' account of the disaster, obtained by telephone from the naval base hospital at Portsmouth, N. H., follows:

"We left the naval base at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. We had orders to practice fast dives. At 7:40 a. m. we received our O. K. to go down. One minute later the order to submerge was given by Lieut. O. F. Naquin, the commander.

"Everything seemed to be in order. The ship dropped down perfectly. She leveled off at 50 feet. A few minutes later we in the forward compartments had the first word that anything was wrong. The control room was informed the after-engine room was flooded.

"The Squalus began to handle heavily. An order was given to blow the tanks and ascent to the surface. The motors were stepped up to full speed.

"The crew worked fast, but the ship failed to respond. Communication with the rear compartments was cut off. We couldn't communicate with the engine room nor with the men in the rear torpedo room.

"Then the motors went out. With them went the lights. The Squalus began to sink. Whatever was wrong was aft. Apparently the ship was taking water by the air vent valves. The forward compartments were shut off, by water-tight doors, from the flooded after parts.

"With no power the Squalus

Tax Program To Be Helpful For Business

Revision Program To Be Offered Congress Ready

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported today congressional leaders had agreed on a tax program with the President that would "definitely" contribute to business recovery.

The treasury head said the tax conference held at the White House yesterday cleared up final details of a corporation tax revision program and that no further conferences were expected.

He replied with an emphatic "yes" when asked if the tax program was ready to go before congress.

He added, however, that he did not yet know on what date the house ways and means committee would summon him to present the plan.

The President conferred yesterday with Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the senate finance committee, Senator Byrnes (D-SC), and Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn.)

Morgenthau said he could report "that more progress has been made in the last couple of days than was made in the last couple of months towards a solution of the tax problem."

He added that "goodwill all around" was responsible for the agreement after months of conflicting statements by the President, treasury officials, legislators and others as to what ought or could be done about taxes to help business.

Morgenthau explained that when the house committee calls him to testify he will make a general statement about tax revision and then Undersecretary John W. Hanes will take charge of the treasury's participation in the tax hearings.

Hanes is a former Wall Street broker and former member of the Securities Commission who has been active for more than a year in promoting friendship between the administration and businessmen.

For Vote As Unit

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, disclosed today he would ask his 22 party colleagues to determine their stand on business tax revision in advance of senate debate and then vote as a unit.

McNary's plan would match proposed Democratic strategy of holding a party conference on suggested tax changes before they are presented to the senate.

Although Democratic leaders said their plans for a caucus were indefinite, McNary indicated he would call one on any corporation tax bill sent over by the house. The latter must act first on revenue measures.

A Democratic caucus would be designed to hasten action and preserve party unity.

There were strong indications that if the house adopts a business tax revision plan, it will be given quick approval by the senate finance committee.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss), who advocates limited changes in corporation levies, was reported to have received some encouragement for this program in a conference yesterday with President Roosevelt.

The President was represented, however, as having reiterated his concern there should be no reduction in revenues and no tax "leaks."

Mrs. Hinman In Bus Accident

Mrs. J. M. Hinman, who was badly bruised in a bus accident near Gilliam, Mo., while enroute to Moberly last Thursday, is still confined to bed at the home of her sister, Mrs. T. A. McCulley, in Moberly, but hopes to be able to return home within a week.

Mrs. Hinman was thrown to the floor of the bus when the driver turned into a ditch to avoid striking an automobile which had turned onto the highway from a side road. The front of the bus was so badly damaged that it could not be driven by its own power, and the passengers were conveyed to their respective destinations by other means.

Mrs. Hinman, who had gone to Moberly to attend the graduation of her niece, was ordered to bed at once, by a physician, and remained there. While her condition is not considered serious, her body was badly bruised.

It was learned that the man and woman who were in the car which turned onto the highway, had received a message that their daughter's home was on fire, the daughter was away and the children were in the house. They left their place hurriedly to go to the children and were enroute when the accident occurred.

Admitted To Hospital

Mrs. F. J. Fisher, of Green Ridge and Miss Francine Keller, Lincoln, were admitted to the Bothwell hospital for surgical treatment.

Pendergast Be Held To Spend $2.50 A Week

Scheduled To Be In Federal Prison On Next Monday

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., May 25.—(AP)—Boss Tom Pendergast who was reputed to have bet $2,000,000 in one year on horse races, will be able to spend only $2.50 a week while serving his 15-month sentence for tax evasion in the federal penitentiary.

Pendergast is scheduled to enter the government's huge prison on the outskirts of Leavenworth not later than 4 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

He was sentenced Monday by Federal District Judge Merrill E. Otis in Kansas City after he pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with evading income taxes on $443,550 in 1935 and 1936.

When the gates of the penitentiary close behind him, the man who ruled a Democratic political dynasty that dominated Kansas City, Jackson County, and made its power felt throughout Missouri and even in national affairs, will

Lear Acquitted In Assault Case

George Lear, 1200½ East Third street, legless WPA worker, was acquitted of a charge of common assault on Mrs. Helen Bressie, 2400 West Broadway boulevard, by a six-man jury in the justice court of James C. Connor Wednesday afternoon, but two other charges, of common assault and of malicious destruction of property, are still pending against him.

The jury reached its verdict after a few minutes of deliberation. Lear, who is able to get around without the aid of a crutch or cane, was charged with hitting Mrs. Bressie, blacking her eye and causing her nose to bleed. The charge alleged the incident took place on March 14, at the Fairview Cabin camp, owned by Tom Bressie, her husband.

Prosecutor Frank W. Hayes tried to show Lear was drunk at the time, and that he hit Mrs. Bressie while she was carrying some glasses and bottles of beer.

Forrest McBane testified that he was standing only a few feet away from Mrs. Bressie and Lear at the time and that he did not see Lear hit her.

Members of the jury were: Ed Bridges, Joe Weaver, Lee Yeater, A. M. Meyers, Jim Hayes and Ed Pollard.

Both the other charges pending against Lear in Judge Connor's court, are said to have happened on that same night. He is accused of common assault on Miss Nellie Roberts, a waitress at the camp, and of malicious destruction of property there.

Fred Wesner and George W. Anson were the attorneys for the defendant.

Hoist 33 Out Of Sunken Sub Still Alive

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 25.—(AP)—A crew of divers, working inside and outside of the nine-ton rescue chamber instrumental in saving the lives of 33 men from the sunken submarine Squalus, sought grimly late today for a sign of life among the 26 still aboard the craft.

"We never say die until all hope is lost," said Admiral C. A. Cole this forenoon before announcing rescue operations had resumed. At his own fears and those of the survivors interviewed at the Portsmouth Naval hospital were that none of the 26 men trapped in the flooded after compartments survived the 40-floot plunge the Squalus took Tuesday on a test dive.

Officials on shore said it was probable divers wearing light gear would work from within the diving chamber to ascertain if any still lived in the flooded rooms.

If all were dead, the divers either would arrange for removal of the bodies or attach air hoses to the Squalus' sides to rid her of water so she might rise herself. A third method of raising her was by pontoons, now en route here across Massachusetts Bay.

The first diver to go down became caught in the downhaul on which the rescue bell operates, and had to be brought up and placed in a decompression chamber. Another diver took his place.

Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin, commander of the Squalus and the last of the survivors to leave her, came ashore today with the other seven crew members who were trapped for four hours last night after the great rescue bell became fouled on its final upward trip from the sunken vessel.

Charles Smith Kuney, yeoman of Tulare, Calif., was borne on a stretcher from the coast guard patrol boat Harriet Lane, up the gang plank and thence between solid ranks of marines, to a waiting ambulance.

Walked To Ambulances

The other crew members appeared in good condition, however, walking briskly to ambulances.

As Lieutenant Naquin, grim-faced, bare headed, dressed in nondescript woolen clothing and a peajacket, reached the head of the gangplank, he was kissed by his waiting wife, Frances, who joined him in the yard commandant's automobile. Naval and marine officers clapped him on the back as he passed them. Naquin managed a slight, momentary smile for waiting cameramen before he entered the car.

Also waiting to greet her husband was the wife of the Squalus' executive officer, Lieutenant William T. Doyle, Jr., of Baltimore.

All were removed to the Portsmouth naval hospital to be placed under medical care, with the shipmates who had preceded them, as a precaution against pneumonia.

Prepare To Remove Bodies

Admiral C. W. Cole, in charge of the rescue and salvage work, boarded the cruiser Brooklyn this morning for a rest. He had directed the rescue continuously since Tuesday morning.

While there was rejoicing throughout the country over the rescue of 33 men, a grim, silent atmosphere prevailed in this city as preparations to remove the bodies got underway.

But for that sad job and the raising of the disabled vessel, the

A Shade Appeals To A Ghost

There must be somewhere in Geneva, among the fine marble buildings that house the physical plant of the League of Nations, a large filing case to which the appeal of King Zog of Albania has recently been consigned.

King Zog's letter to Secretary-General Avenol of the League was a request that the facts of the conquest of Albania be called to the attention of League members, with a request that they refrain from recognizing this "conquest achieved by blood and iron" and brought about "by all modern means a state of 44,000,000 has at its disposal when it plans an act of aggression."

In that same file would be numerous documents from Haile Selassie, the King of Kings of Abyssinia, faintly protesting from his English retreat, the occupation by Italian troops of his remote African domain. And beside it somewhere must be the files from China, couched in the polite and gentle language of the Chinese diplomat, asking the League to do something about the invasion of China.

The file grows apace, wherever it is, and yet of course these documents are doomed to no better fate than to yellow and fade, and await the attention of the historians of the future.

These shades of kings and governors are appealing to the ghost of a League, and there is a strange unreality about the whole procedure.

The League still exists, twenty-or-so members still adhere to it and maintain the marble buildings and the thinning secretarial staff that still goes through the motions of conducting a going concern.

Perhaps even so shadowy a performance is not entirely in vain. May there not come a time when the nations of the world, weary of the eternally-increasing burden of armament, sick of living beneath the perpetual shadow of crises, will turn again to try to reconstitute a better way of handling these things than by force and threat?

In its main objectives, the League of Nations has failed. It is easy now to see some of the reasons. Too heavy a dominance by the victors in a great war, too close a tie to the terms of settlement of that war, these are factors of failure which are easy to understand today.

Yet the League has done good work in some fields, has adjusted many minor problems, even though it failed in the great ones. It has not been entirely in vain. The experience gained in the "experiment, noble in purpose," will be a new guide-post when the effort comes anew, as it must come some day.

It is a ghost, perhaps at Geneva, but it is a ghost of whose presence men are still constantly aware.

Wings Over Atlantic

By chance or by design, the first scheduled flight of the Yankee Clipper across the Atlantic comes just 20 years after the great flight of the NC-4, pride of the navy, after the World War.

The NC-4 in those days represented all the lessons the navy had been able to learn from the World War—she was the last word in over-water flying development.

Yet how odd the pictures of the NC-4 look today in contrast with the sleek and streamlined clippers! They seem scarcely akin at all, and not as a development one from the other, the NC dumpy and a mass of strut-wires, the Clipper clean-lined and smooth.

With this evidence before us of what the past 20 years have done, who can doubt that great progress will mark the next 20? We shall fly to Europe as easily as we now fly to New York or Chicago.

But will there be a comparable progress in the uses of which these magnificent ocean-birds will be put? The same intelligence that built the ships must provide the answer.

Second American City

We have become accustomed to think of New York as the first American city, Chicago the second, at least in size.

But now we shall have to be more specific, and say "North American city" or "city of the United States."

For Buenos Aires, the beautiful capital city of Argentina, is now the second city of the Western Hemisphere. In population which has had a phenomenal growth in recent years, is now 3,304,000 as compared with Chicago's 3,258,444. The two cities are almost the same size geographically since Buenos Aires increased the federal district which marks the city as our own District of Columbia bounds Washington. During the past eight years, Buenos Aires has grown in population by 400,000 while the whole state of Illinois was increasing only 200,000.

All this is simply a visible evidence of the great forward strides that are being made in the more progressive countries of South America, destined to be great empires within this century.

After capturing $500 in a French bicycle race, the winner ate 18 eggs, 30 sandwiches, 24 oranges, two pounds of sugar. He drank a bottle of champagne, a bottle of cognac, and 20 bottles of beer. There goes his prize money.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Inside reason for Congressman Christy Sullivan's rare White House visit the other day was to discuss his successor as boss of Tammany.

The white-haired, quiet spoken Tammany chieftain is anxious to step out of the wigwam, didn't want the job in the first place, and plans to hold organization elections within the next few days.

The outcome of those elections may have a lot to do with the vital question of who carries New York in 1940. If Roosevelt can control Tammany, the chances for a New Deal candidate obviously are stronger. And now, for the first time in recent years, the Tammany tiger, its fur mauled by Tom Dewey, is ready to come completely into the New Deal camp.

The row over who will head Tammany, however is not going to be within Tammany. It is docile enough to accept almost anyone the Administration wants. The row is going to be within the Administration itself.

Jim Farley, with his own eye glued on 1940, wants one of his own trusted lieutenants in this key place and has been secretly pushing Congressman Joe Gavagan. Roosevelt, on the other hand, leans toward Jim Fay, one-legged war veteran who unseated that famous New Deal-hater, John O'Connor, in the bitter purge of 1938.

Popular and liberal, Fay would revolutionize Tammany's murky leadership. But he is first, last and always Roosevelt's man, not Jim Farley's So differences over the two candidates may develop the first political row between the President and his chief political strategist. It might even force a showdown on Jim's own political ambition.

Note — Possible compromise candidates are Jack Kelley, once political lieutenant of Hines, and Eddie Loughlin, secretary to Judge Ferdinand Pecora, who bolted Tammany last year to manage Fay's compaign.

Redskins

Reminiscing about his six exciting years as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Criminal Division, hard-hitting Brien McMahon chose the following as one of his most amusing experiences:

He was prosecuting some New York football ticket scalpers on tax evasion charges when George ("Long Live Linen") Marshall, Washington laundry magnate and owner of the Redskins football team, called on him to intercede for one of the culprits.

"He is a good fellow," Marshall argued," and he is willing to make good any taxes he owes."

"You realize, don't you, George," said McMahon, "that these scalpers were getting $6 for tickets your box office was selling for $4? You didn't get half of the rake-off, did you?"

"Hell, no," was the indignant reply. "So they were getting $6 for tickets we were selling for $4! Brien, but them in jail for life.'"

Labor Board Attack

It never rains but it pours for the National Labor Relations Board.

In addition to being under searching congressional investigation and flayed almost daily by business spokesmen, the agency faces its toughest ordeal yea—a bare-knuckle going over by Chairman Martin Dies of the un-Americanism investigating committee.

Object of the Texan's proposed probe is to expose Red influences in high Board places.

His chief sources of inside information are the American Federation of Labor and three former NLRB employes, the most active of whom is Hugh C. McCarty, 40-year?old Montana lawyer who spent six months as an NLRB trial examiner. McCarthy confers frequently with Senator Edward Burke, leading congressional enemy of the Board, and has published several charts purporting to prove that the NLRB is controlled by radicals.

Dies' plan to put the Board on the griddle is a deep secret; in fact, several members of his commiteee knew nothing about it until tipped off by outsiders. However, Burke and John Frey, AFL Metal Trades head and bitter NLRB foe, have been in on the secret from the start.

They have acted as Dies' brain trust on the matter, meeting secretly with him and Rhea Whitley, chief committee investigator, practically every week to go over data.

Note—Administrationites assert that hints have reached them from high AFL quarters that if Commissioner Edward Smith, charged with being pro-CIO, would quit, the AFL would drop its fight against the Board.

Justice Douglas

Time hangs heavy these balmy evenings in the Silver Springs, Md., home of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. No longer do friends ring up with a familiar "Hello, Bill" or drop in after dinner as they did when he was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Olympian aloofness of the supreme bench has enfolded him, and friends hesitate to intrude. Jolly and gregarious, Douglas misses his old easy companionships, and the other night he decided to do something about it.

He phoned the chief operator and inquired, "Miss, is this line out of order? It hasn't rung for three nights. Please investigate right away."

A few minutes later the operator called back: "There is nothing wrong with your phone, sir. The reason it hasn't rung is that nobody has called up in the last three days."

"What's the matter, Bill," inquired Mrs. Douglas as he banged down the receiver.

"I don't know, but it's something,' he replied. "Get your things on. We're going visiting. My friends can't high-hat me this way."

Note—The fact that the Jusice now has a private phone number may have something to do with it. He dropped the old number when the phone began ringing incessantly immediately after his appointment.

House Cleaning

One job Harry Hopkins has marked out for early action is "liberalizing" the membership of the Business Advisory Council.

As set up by his predecessor, "Uncle Dan" Roper, the Council is self-perpetuating. Members pick their own successors, so that big business, enthroned when Roper organized the Council in 1933, still is in control. There is not a single small business representative or New Deal business man on its list.

Hopkins intends to remedy these omissions by naming some outstanding spokesmen of both groups. He has under consideration E. C. Love, former president of the Oklahoma Bankers Association; L. E. Kidstein, officer of the Associated Merchandising Corporation; and John Wright, Jamestown, N. Y., manufacturer and independent telephone owner.

Uncle Sam May Be Nemesis For Atlantic City "Boss"

By Paul Ross
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 24—Had Uncle Sam not stepped in the other day and indicted Enoch L. "Nocky" Johnson on income tax charges, the chances are that Nocky would have gone on being the supreme political autocrat of Atlantic City without let or hindrance until he died. Now he may have come the inevitable cropper—like other bosses before him.

Other bosses have had their hair shirts and their Nemeses—Boss Tweed a hostile press, Boss Hines a courageous district attorney, Boss Hague the powerful CIO. But in his three-decade reign, Republican Boss Johnson has continued a big, happy-go-lucky, colorful dictator absolutism arouses no more than a shrug and a wry smile among his subjects. And no one gets a bigger laugh out of it than Nocky himself.

Johnson was born in 1884 on the truck farm of an early-settler family. His mother, who lived to become a politician also and to hold curbstone forums with younger bravos, used to drive the farm wagon herself. His father, Smith Johnson, was sheriff several times. Young Enoch didn't stay in school long, ran around barefoot, put on nifty patent-leather shoes when he turned girl-conscious, began to shuffle the sheriff's office between himself and his father.

Learned Well The Politics Game

He became the protege of the saloon keeper-politician boss of Atlantic City. Nocky learned well. In 1912 there was a revolt against the boss. His toga descended on Nocky where it has remained ever since. Years later, Johnson repeated this maneuver against the state Republican boss whose lieutenant he had become. From 1928 to 1934 Nocky was allied with Mayor Frank Hague for control of the state.

The only other indictment ever brought against Socky Johnson came in 1911. It was charged that some books containing the names of real and phantom voters were held by Johnson. He was tried and acquitted.

Since the World War he has been treasurer of Atlantic County at $6,000 per annum. He is also "representative" for a brewery and "salesman" for a gasoline company. His beer and his gas are widely sold in Atlantic City.

Big Spender And "Waiter"

Johnson lives in a style befitting his overlordship. At one time he occupied an entire floor in a beachfront hotel and a whole floor in a big New York hotel. Close friends simply went and stayed with "the czar." A Manhattan columnist has called him one of the two real playboys left. He is known to give $100 tips to night-club actors and $20 to waiters. The grateful waiters' union long ago presented him with a solid gold membership card, No. 508. Johnson himself once told voters, "I've spent about two million dollars in the interests of the Republican party."

Enoch ("Nocky") Johnson . . . "laughed at efforts to 'get' him."

Nocky, like any political chieftain, knows how to keep himself in power. Atlantic City residents tell you Johnson "does a lot for charity." for the Boss gives out coal and food baskets. He personally intervenes to save the jobs of road workers. He sees that unpaid teachers get some of their back salary, even if it is in scrip.

In a city with large Italian, Jewish and Negro groups he makes speeches about "bigotry"—at election time—and in the right neighborhoods. When he faced a critical election in 1936 he came out in favor of pay restorations for the cops and firemen. During elections, his henchmen demand a "vote of confidence" in Nocky although others are running for office.

His "Opposition" Now Is Tough

Johnson has laughed at efforts to "get" him. His reply to an "investigation" by New Jersey officials was that he enjoyed being a "menace to good government." Once when some reporters from a New York paper were in town to do an "expose" of him, he good-naturedly said to the boys, "Why don't you guys lay off me? Don't you see you're ruinin' me?"

But this time Nocky is up against tough customers. In 1937 FBI men began looking into Atlantic City. Now Johnson has been indicted, along with three others, on charges of evading income taxes. It may be the beginning of the end for one of the last of the old-time political bosses.

It is said that the human eye is capable of detecting the difference of one-millionth of an inch.

● SERIAL STORY

DATE WITH DANGER

BY HELEN WORDEN
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Nick Hart tries to kill Mary when he finds her with the Janice French pictures, then he leaves when police approach. Later, Mary goes to headquarters to tell her story.

CHAPTER V

MARY and Jim Chase arrived at Police Headquarters after Tom Ladd. Commissioner Fenelon had left word for her to come directly to his office.

She glanced at the big clock in the white marble hall. The hour hand pointed to 3. Tired, depressed and apprehensive, she could imagine things closing ominously in on her and Tom. Sinister men in shadowy streets, wicked blue steel revolvers. The dark, slick waters of the river. White bodies on cold stone slabs. Like Black bats these macabre thoughts ran through her mind as she climbed the stairs with the detective. Three o'clock in the morning was also the ebb hour for Police Headquarters. A couple of officers in the main corridor watched the door, but aside from them the halls were deserted.

"I'll leave you here," Chase said, as they reached the third floor.

Nodding goodby, she walked into the Commissioner's office.

A low lamp burned over the big desk. The air was gray with smoke. Tom sat in his coat and hat, as though he had only just come in, but the ashes in the little tray on the desk showed that he had been there some time. At sight of Mary he jumped up.

"You're not hurt?" he asked anxiously.

"No, I'm all right."

He turned, "Miss Franklin, this is Commissioner Fenelon."

The commissioner was not the officer of fiction. Educated, suave and easy-mannered, he was, as Mary knew, a lightning keen police officer, trained to the job.

"Won't you sit down, Miss Franklin. I want to hear more about the Duke and Nick Hart. Their actions may have some bearing on Janice French's disappearance."

FENELON was a big fellow, over six feet tall, with strong, wide shoulders and a muscular body. He had slate gray eyes that narrowed when he talked and long, sensitive-fingered hands. When you looked at them you couldn't help thinking that they'd close like steel on anything they gripped.

"Janice's parents are frantic, Mary," Ladd said. "They haven't seen her since Wednesday."

"She called them yesterday noon, however," interrupted Fenelon, "but she didn't say where she was, just said she'd spend the week-end with them at Tuxedo."

"Did they know of this apartment she kept on East 70th Street?" inquired Mary.

"No. And I haven't told them. They might lose their heads and rush to it. I want to keep it clear. I may be able to trap the Duke with the goods. Tell us what happened to you there."

Mary repeated the story she had told Chase, building it up with word sketches of the Dove and an account of her conversation with the Duke earlier in the evening.

"Janice was just a fat, juicy plum for Martin and Hart to blackmail," said the commissioner. "For that reason I can't believe they'd kill the goose that laid the golden egg. She was worth more alive."

"But where is she?" asked Mary.

"Hiding."

Ladd looked thoughtful. "My guess is that Martin and Hart also think she is hiding. They'll give their boys the high-sign. Then the Duke will let her know that he's got those candid camera shots you saw tonight. She'll have to pay again."

"Suppose she doesn't?" Mary turned to Fenelon.

"They'll take the pictures to her parents and say they'll be sold to a tabloid if they don't come across. Those fellows are pretty well organized." The commissioner touched some papers in front of him. "Like to see their records?"

MARY reached for a report marked, "Jake Martin, alias 'The Duke,'" and read: "Born in August, 1908, in Hell's Kitchen. Son of Annie, scrubwoman, who worked in the Beaux Arts restaurant at 40th street and 6th avenue.

"Annie was arrested ten times for petty larceny. She schooled her son in the cocaine racket. He was a good student. His name didn't appear on the police blotters until 1924. This was the first time that the names of Nick Hart and Bill Condon had been coupled with his. Mother's tears are effective weapons before a Parole Board. One year after his sentence, Jake Martin was free again. He and his mother went into the bootlegging business, first in a modest way above a pool hall on the corner of 50th street and 11th avenue, later in more elaborate surroundings on 8th avenue and 53d street.

"Martin became associated with a dope racketeer named Cokie Conklin. Only Martin and his old mother know what happened after Conklin dined with them the night Cokie carried $20,000 in cash on his person. Even Conklin cannot tell; he was never seen again. After that, little was heard of Martin until 1932, when he started the Dove with Nick Hart, his gang lieutenant. Bill Condon was the bouncer. Annie, the scrubwoman, Martin's mother, had disappeared. Martin was putting on the Ritz. Gradually, he was becoming a definite character in the night life of New York. Park avenue began to patronize his place."

"It was then," interrupted the commissioner, "that the idea of blackmail struck the Duke as an easy racket. He trained Bill to help frame his customers. Do you remember the first time the name of the Dove was sent into the Gazette?"

"About three years ago," said Mary. "I recall the case—a rich man who was later divorced. A candid shot of him taken at the Dove with a pretty girl came in with the story. I didn't use it, but the Looking Glass did. When the man's wife filed suit she named the girl as corespondent."

THE ringing of the telephone interrupted them. "What's that?" said Fenelon. "No one in any hospital answering the description of Janice French? Try the morgue."

Then to Mary, "That man you spoke of didn't pay off the Duke. But for everyone that didn't, there were a dozen who did. We would prosecute Martin if we could get the victims to talk. They lack courage."

He banged his fist on the desk. "Even though I know the Duke's a crook, a murderer and everything else you want to call him, I can't arrest him without evidence. That is where you can help me, Miss Franklin."

"At least I could describe the pictures I saw tonight," said Mary.

"That wouldn't help," snapped Fenelon. "If Hart took those snapshots of Janice French with him, there's nothing we can do on that score."

"It would be your word against theirs, Mary," broke in Ladd, "before a hipper-dipper judge and with the best lawyer in town smearing you."

A knock punctuated Ladd's sentence. "Come in," called Fenelon.

An officer stepped in. "The Morgue's reported the body of a young girl dragged from the East River near Beekman Place, sir."

Fenelon and Ladd stared at one another. "She's dead?" cried Mary.

"Yes. They put it down as suicide."

"Could you identify Janice French, Miss Franklin?"

"I ought to be able to. I've been following her six weeks."

The commissioner picked up his telephone. "Call the car." Then to Mary and Ladd, "Let's go."

Rose Talk No. 9

Is it necessary to prepare a Rose bed as carefully as some advise?

Roses always give longer stems, more constant blooms, are less susceptible to black spot, and live over winter better, when the beds are properly prepared. When preparing the Rose bed, the soil should be excavated for at least two feet — the deeper the better. Place a layer of stone, gravel, or coarse cinders, from four to six inches deep, as a foundation for the beds, and a means of drainage. Break up the soil removed, and enrich it with well decayed manure, or discard some of the worst of the soil, replacing it with top-soil from the surface of the garden. Any well rotted manure, or good compost may be used as a fertilizer. Ground bone (bone meal) at the rate of about one pound to each eight square yards of soil, is excellent to add as additional food.

We have a complete line of plants for Memorial day. Drive out to our greenhouses and see our beautiful display.

Find Donnici Guilty Of Drug Charges

Defer Sentencing Of Alleged Head Of Ring Until June 1

KANSAS CITY, May 25.—(AP)—Angelo Donnici, described by federal officials as the kingpin of a major illicit drug syndicate, was convicted Wednesday in federal court of violating the narcotic act.

The jury deliberated only 12 minutes and found the squat bondsman, who knew federal officials well enough to call them by their first names, guilty on all three counts of an indictment.

H. J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, who came here last month from Washington to aid in breaking up the narcotic ring which he charged did an annual business of $12,000,000, said drugs worth more than a million dollars were seized by his agents in their roundup of the syndicate which served peddlers in many midwestern states.

Sentencing Deferred

Sentence of Donnici, who operates a saloon within the shadow of the temporary federal court building, was deferred until June 6, by Judge John C. Collet. The maximum punishment he can order is five years imprisonment on each count or a total of 15 years.

The indictment charged Donnici sold nine ounces and 72 grains of narcotics at his saloon last June 13 and government evidence pointed to the 64-year-old bondsman as the operating head of the ring. Its case was built principally on testimony of two federal undercover operators who spent more than two years unmasking the big syndicate. Donnici was familiarly known by associates as the "Mayor of East Ninth Street" where his saloon was located.

He denied the federal charges but his co-defendant in the indictment, Charles Crapisi, pleaded guilty and also is awaiting sentence.

The Third Monkey

"I know nothing about anything. I no see a thing, no sir," Donnici told the jury.

The judge may also assess a fine or not to exceed $10,000 on each count.

No emotion was shown by Donnici and he was returned to his cell.

Seven indictments remain against him, charging purchase, sale and possession of narcotics.

96 Degree Mark Reached Here Is New High

Reaching one of the highest marks in the state, the temperature here Wednesday hit a second-day maximum of 96 degrees, 16 degrees higher than the May 24 recording in 1937 and 1938, the only two previous years of which records are available.

mum of 96 degrees, 16 degrees higher than the May 24 recording in 1937 and 1938, the only two previous years of which records are available.

By five o'clock the thermometer had dropped only five points. The low for the day registered at three o'clock in the morning, was 72 degrees. Hot prevailing winds were from the southwest.

Torrid sunshine sent the mercury soaring to new record highs over much of Missouri and Kansas. A year ago, the local weather report for May 24 gave a 72 maximum, while in 1937 the high was 80 degrees. The minimum last year on May 24 was 41 degrees in Sedalia.

Wednesday Kansas City had a new high mark when the mercury reached 96—shirt sleeve weather in any man's language. St. Joseph had a top of 95. Jefferson City's 91 was the highest for the date in five years and Springfield's 90 was a new record.

Reports of hot, dry weather in the southwest wheat country just a few weeks ahead of harvest sent wheat prices up. In Kansas City speculative buyers bid future

Inquiry About Open Valves

WASHINGTON, May 25—(AP)—A special inquiry board will undertake to determine why two or more big air intake valves were left open on the submarine Squalus.

The board will be named after rescue and salvage operations are completed.

Navy undersea technicians explained that at least two of the valves must have remained open for the boat to be partially flooded and disabled.

Either the closing appartus or members of the crew might have been responsible, they said. The valves, equipped with electrical warning apparatus, were designed to be virtually fool-proof, but an official of ten years submarine service commented that "any device of man is subject to failure."

Removal Of Dead Now Grim Task

navy had completed, with the first use of the new nine-ton escape bell, one of the most dramatic underwater rescues in the annals of the sea.

Four times the huge, grotesque appearing apparatus was lowered over the side of the submarine rescue ship Falcon. Three times it came up smoothly and promptly, carrying men from the gloom in which they had spent more than thirty hours.

Then, on the fourth time, something went wrong. A cable fouled and held the last eight survivors suspended midway between the muddy bottom and the surface.

Divers labored frantically. Finally, four hours later, the giant apparatus was freed and the last men, including Lieutenant O. F. Naquin, commander of the Squalus, stepped to the deck of the Falcon.

As that trip was completed, shortly after midnight (EDT) rescue operations were suspended until daylight. Admiral C. W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, issued the following communique:

"This completes rescue of all known survivors. Investigation of flooded compartments will proceed as expeditiously as possible. Suspending operations for the night due to damage to rescue chamber, which must be repaired before further use."

As the rescued men — seven the first trip, nine the second and third trips and eight the last time — left the big bell, they stepped into a decompression chamber. The rescue was history-making since the successful use of the massive chamber was its first actual test under these desperate conditions.

Then, as they recovered from cold and pressure changes they were brought ashore.

Conserve Oxygen

Disabled shortly after 8:40 a. m. Tuesday morning, when an air induction valve failed to close and poured tons of water into the after compartments, the Squalus lay on an even keel at the bottom and the men in the forward compartments "took it easy" throughout the long hours to conserve the oxygen.

After telephone communication with the surface was broken the men settled down to a long wait. Then, for hours, the navy massed its strength for rescue efforts. Finally at about noon yesterday the rescue bell dropped over the Falcon's side and touched the escape chamber of the Squalus.

The connection was made and blankets and hot soup handed into the sub to ease the biting cold. Seven men stepped inside with the man who came down from the surface and slowly the bell came up.

With their arrival on the deck of the Falcon came first definite news of the casualties trapped in the flooded sections of the submarine. Swiftly word was flashed ashore and the heart-rending task of advising relatives was begun.

One wife was seized with hysteria when told her husband was dead. Other women refused to give up hope, clinging to the belief that in some way, somehow, their men might be alive in the blocked-off, water-filled compartments.

"Thank God, Oh, thank God," cried the mothers and wives of the men who came through the ordeal safely.

From the survivors themselves came only laconic comments about the bitter cold in the entombing vessel.

"I don't think I'll ever get warm again," was a common remark from the shivering men as they reached this port, 15 miles from the scene of the disaster.

First man to breathe free air and see the sun after the long confinement was Lieutenant J. C. Nichols. It was a dramatic scene. The sun broke through the clouds just as the bell broke through the ocean's surface. The air was tense with excitement, dread, hope —

Airplanes circled overhead. A dozen ships, including the big cruiser Brooklyn, floated near by. Slowly the bell swung onto the Falcon's deck. The hatch in the roof opened and Lt. Nichols stepped out into the sunshine.

Cheers In Rescues

Cheers broke out from the men on the deck and answering cheers and shouts echoed from the other vessels.

First contact with the Squalus had been made by Frank P. Miller, a Portsmouth navy yard diver, who stepped on the steel hull at 10:22 a. m. (EDT).

"It was a tough dive," he reported later. "The water was extremely cold. I was down on the sub (making the connection for the diving bell) only 15 minutes, but it took about 73 minutes for me to come up and recover."

The bell started down at 11:40 a. m. and began its return trip at 1:18 p. m. Lt. Nichols stepped to the deck at 1:45 p. m. Then, persistently, the chamber continued its elevator-like trips which continued until shortly after midnight. There was not a hitch until the last ascent.

Officers eagerly watching the bell in its acid test found it an unqualified success. It was developed after the S-4 disaster off Provincetown, Mass., in which 40 men lost their lives in 1927. Built to withstand tremendous pressure, the bell is filled with a helium-oxygen mixture for breathing so as to prevent "bends," a disease caused by pressure changes.

A hose from the surface supplied the breathing mixture during the ascent and was responsible for averting a second tragedy when the bell stuck on its fourth trip up. During the long halt, the men were jammed like sardines into the apparatus, but the hose supplied them with air to breathe.

The survivors were hospitalized promptly. Naval spokesmen said they believed all would survive and be released from the hospital during the day.

Naval officials said first efforts to evacuate the dead would necessitate divers entering the stricken craft, probably through the escape bell. Inside they will attempt to bring out as many of the bodies as possible and send them to the surface in the bell.

After the bodies are removed, an air hose will be attached, the water blown out of the sub and efforts made to float it. If efforts to remove the bodies are unsuccessful the rescue flotilla will seek to raise the Squalus with the bodies inside and then tow it to the navy yard here.

One naval spokesman, asked how long the last salvage operations might take, replied:

"It might take a day or it might take three weeks."

The spokesman explained that the procedure of "blowing" out the water was similar to the process of inserting a straw into a bottle of milk and blowing the milk out through another hole in the bottle.

If that effort fails it may be necessary to raise the Squalus by pontons.

Saved Lives Of 33

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 25 —Electrician's Mate Lloyd B. Maness of Greeensboro, N. C., whose "superhuman" effort in closing a watertight compartment door saved the lives of 33 men aboard the stricken submarine Squalus, told today how he held the door open long enough to save five men in the next compartment.

"I was detailed in charge of the bulkhead door between the control room and the after battery," Maness told newspapermen. "At the instant that the Squalus settled to the bottom, we were at a sharp up angle and down aft.

"The water was rising rapidly in the after compartment and I realized that the time was short if I was to close the bulkhead door. Due to the angle of the ship and the fact that the door opened from a down angle, I had to exert all my strength to swing it into place.

"I had partailly closed the door when several men shouted to me from the rapidly filling after battery.

"They yelled: 'Keep it open. Keep it open.' Whereupon I let the door slip back on its hinges to allow O'Hara, Blanchard, Boulton, Isaacs and Washburn to pass through. Immediately I swung the door shut, and turned down the water tight screw and walked forward to join the rest of the crew.

"I realize of course that there must have been men trapped in the after compartment, but in an emergency of this kind every bulkhead door in all sections of the ship must be fastened as a measure of safety. Even those doors forward in the dry section had been closed.

"I know of only one man that was shut in the water-filled control room, John J. Batick. I had talked with him just a moment before the accident.

"At such times as this, there is no time for sentiment."

Commander Last To Leave

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 25 —(AP)—True to the traditions of the sea, Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin of Alexandria, La., commanding officer of the stricken submarine Squalus, was the last to leave his vessel.

The tall, scholarly appearing officer was the last to enter the escape bell on its fourth and last trip to the surface and he was the last to step from the bell when it reached the deck of the rescue ship Falcon. He carried the log book.

Reports Speedily Given Out

WASHINGTON, May 25—(AP)—The sinking of the submarine Squalus put into effect in dramatic fashion the navy's new policy of reporting news events fully and promptly.

At both the Portsmouth navy yard, the submersible's home port, and the navy department here, reports from the scene were given out with a minimum of delay.

By order of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations, reporters and photographers were taken to the scene from New York on the U. S. S. Brooklyn.

The order to make public "news worthy" events was issued last week by Admiral Claude C. Bloch, fleet commander in chief. Specifically included was such news as crashes and the loss of men overboard, as well as matters which navy officials considered more favorable to the service.

Two Divorces Granted

Mrs. Matilda Callies was granted a divorce from John Callies in the circuit court Wednesday afternoon, and was given custody of their two children.

A decree was also granted to Mrs. Hazel Lilley from Theodore Lilley, and the plaintiff was given custody of their minor child, with $10 a month for its support.

Mrs. Ware A Visitor

Mrs. John A. Ware, former Sedalia resident, now of Santa Fe, N. M., who has been visiting her friends here, is now at the St. Francis hotel. Her daughter, Mrs. W. W. Nielson, is at Santa Fe where she is engaged in newspaper work.

continued to sink. The descent seemed to be slow. We settled on the bottom. There was no great jar.

"She settled at an langle of about 10 degrees by the bow. My guess was that she was at least 210 feet from the surface.

"There was no panic among the men. All stayed at their stations. Orders were obeyed instantly. Lieut. Naquin told everybody to keep their heads. If they did, he said, everything would be all right.

Flooding Localized

"He was correct, so far as the personnel forward was concerned. The flooding had been localized and only a little water seeped in on us.

"Pretty soon the forward marker buoy was sent up. We knew this would give our location and bring help. Then we sat down to wait—and listen for the rescue ships. We wondered how long it would be until someone came along and found the buoy and the telephone wire attached to it.

"At 1:40 we heard the beat of the engines of the Sculpin, a sister ship. It was a great relief to all of us when she communicated with us on the phone. After that it was a question of holding out. We had great faith in the diving bell.

"The main thing was to conserve air—to use as little as possible and keep the supply pure. We purified it, when it got bad, with soda lime. When we had to, we released some of our oxygen.

"The men didn't talk much, nor move around a lot. Talking and moving both burn up oxygen. As it was, our supply stayed in excellent shape until just before the rescuers arrived.

"But we listened. After the telephone line went out we waited for the clank of divers' feet above us, and we tapped out messages in code on the iron above us.

"It was cold there on the bottom. In the forward torpedo room, where I was stationed, the temperature ranged between 34 and 36 degrees. Aside from the cold we were not very uncomfortable. Although the ship's power was gone, we still had lights—hanging lamps that worked on storage batteries.

"For food we had our emergency rations, but we didn't eat much. We just sat most of the time conserving strength, saving oxygen, and wondering. Most of the men stood up physically. Two in each forward compartment—four in all—became a little sick, or perhaps just weak.

"None of us made any complaints. They didn't make any dramatic speeches. We all figured how long it would take the Falcon to arrive. We knew when she came that everything was going to be all right.

"When the bell finally was attached to the escape hatch, the men in the torpedo room were commanded to ascend first. The order included me specifically. With me went the men who seemed most nearly exhausted.

"Hope never left any of us. We knew the rescue equipment was fine. I had seen the bell tested. Besides, we all had our Momsen lungs (individual breathing devices) and we could have attempted to get out in them if the other rescue efforts had failed.

"There is some question whether, at our depth, men could have withstood the water pressure and the cold, but the lung was still a hope."

Check On Use Of 'Gas' And Oil

KANSAS CITY, May 25—(AP)—A modern town pump—supplying city employes with approximately 64.000 gallons of gasoline a month —came under official scrutiny today.

Investigation of city records the Star said, shows 65 employes in various city departments have been receiving monthly tickets for gasoline and oil from the public works department pumps.

The cards resemble meal tickets with rows of figures to be punched out for varying amounts of gasoline and oil. Each card is good for a total of 114 gallons.

Edward F. McGrath, director of the public works department, said there is no way to prevent employes from using the gasoline and oil for private driving.

"We don't allow them to fill up their tanks after Friday," McGrath said. "That's to keep them from filling up Saturday for a long jaunt over the week-end. As a matter of fact, we've been pretty stiff with the users of the city's gasoline and oil."

The Forward Kansas City committee, recently organized by civic leaders, started an investigation of what use is made of the oil and gasoline.

Real Heroism In The Rescue

spotlighted area was only a camouflag for the grim drama beneath the surface.

Divers fought desperately to save the lives of the nine men in the bell as they hung suspended 150 feet below the surface. Watchers on this vessel, 700 yards away, saw diver after diver lowered overside to help. There was no word or sign to indicate the progress of the struggle.

Then came word from the Falcon that they were preparing to "blow up the bell." To landsman's ears those words sounded ominous but officers quickly explained that meant to blow the water from the bell's lower compartment.

Forty minutes later came the welcome 'all's well" and the hundreds of men in the rescue flotilla breathed again.

Divers Sent Down

Admiral C. W. Cole said that when it became evident something had gone wrong with the bell he sent a diver down, but he lost his light and without it he was helpless trying to work on the numerous connections.

"We brought him up," the admiral related, "and sent down another diver to disconnect the downhall so if worst came to worst we could blow air into the bell for ascent by its own buoyancy. We didn't wish to do this, however, except as a last resort as we were unable to tell where or how fast it would come up. It might rise under a rescue ship and bring a lot of broken heads."

The admiral said the operator of the bell kept up telephonic communication with the Falcon "joking despite the serious aspect of the situation. They even told us they wanted beefsteak."

"A third diver became fouled in the line," Cole said, "and we had to decompress him on the way up—a two hour job. We couldn't afford to let the bell up while he was down there as the bell might have struck and killed him. Finally we hauled him as far away from the bell as possible.

"Then we put men on the top line and told the bellmen to blow ballast slowly in an effort to reach negative buoyancy. This was hard to do because the margin was so narrow, but the buoyancy was successfully controlled and we finally hauled the bell up by hand.

"I don't think I ever saw a pleasanter sight than the bell reaching the surface. Survivors smiles were even wider than ours."

exchange his identity for a number.

It was expected Pendergast's prison number will be in the 54,000s as he takes place among the approximately 3,100 convicts in the institution.

Undergo "Shakedown"

Because of his ill-health, Pendergast may not be required to undergo in every detail the usual prison routine, but so far as his physical condition permits it was expected the boss's entry into prison will follow these general lines:

After the prison officers accompanying him have signed the prison register, Pendergast will be taken through iron barred doors to the record clerk who will receive his commitment papers and send him to a room where he will undergo a "shakedown."

In this room Pendergast will become simply another number. This number will be placed on all prison clothing and all identification cards and all prison communications and records will refer to him by number.

He will be fingerprinted, protographer and weighed. He will be required to remove all his clothing which will be returned to his family. Then he will be given a thorough physical examination by the convict physician in charge of the department.

This physician at present is Dr. L. O. Muench, St. Louis, who is serving a term in connection with an extortion plot against another St. Louis physician.

Be Given Prison Garb

Pendergast will bathe in one of the five showers in this room and put on prison garb. He will be issued one pair of brown, prison made brogans, two pairs of white cotton socks, two cotton undershirts, two cotton drawers, two pairs of blue denim trousers, two blue denim shirts, one handkerchief, two face towels and a toothbrush.

Leaving the shakedown room Pendergast may be taken to quarters where new prisoners are held 30 days, or if his physical condition requires, to the hospital.

In the prisoners quarters, if he goes there, Pendergast's room will be plain, with a bed, mattress, two sheets, pillow, two blankets, wash bowl and toilet. In this cell block he will be unable to receive visitors other than his attorneys and will not receive any mail or write any letters.

He will be given typhoid and diphtheria shots and have his blood tested. He also will be examined by the classification committee consisting of the warden, associate warden, chief medical officer, phychiatrist, Catholic priest, Protestant chaplain and the head of prison industries.

This committee will determine the work he can do and assign him a task.

After 30 days the prisoner is moved to another cell block and the privileges of the regular prison routine are accorded him. Then he begins the duties assigned him by the classification committee.

Privileges include the freedom to go into the prison yard with the other convicts at specified times, commissary privileges which allow him to make purchases at the prison store (a prisoner is allowed $10 a month to spend), mail privileges allowing him to send two letters a week and to receive seven letters in the same time from approved correspondents.

Mail is read by custodial officers before prisoners receive it and outgoing letters are read before being mailed.

If the physician in the shakedown room finds Pendergast's condition requires medical treatment he may be sent to the prison hospital. Here he would be allowed regular prison privileges and would have registered medical attendants to care for him.

He also would be allowed visitors in the hospital and would be given special diets. He also would be allowed a two-hour visit each month. This period however, may be split up into shorter visits and oftener if desired.

Average Doy of Convicts

Life in the prison is regular. Following is the schedule of an average day for convicts:

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

It extended sympathy for the 26 others for whom hope has been abandoned in the sunken submarine off the New England coast.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung was impressed deeply by the "remarkable" discipline of the trapped men and said:

"The achievements of the rescue crew in those tense hours will be counted among the most impressive peacetime accomplishments of the United States navy."

Visions Passing Of The 'Bosses'

ST. LOUIS, May 25—(AP)—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark apparently believes his contest with T. J. Pendergast and the Kansas City Democratic organization is over.

He told the St. Louis League of Women Voters' convention yesterday: "Our beloved state is now emerging from under the spell of one of the most corrupting and demoralizing political machines in the history of the nation. x x x this is the 'twilight of the bosses.'"

"The boss," Stark said, "is more than a political phenomenon. He is a tremendous business liability to the people of the state and the nation. x x x

"Crime cannot flourish without protection; protection for criminals is synonymous with crooked public officials. The last link in the vicious chain, and the most important one, is the boss, who, in turn, protects the crooked public official through bribery, ballot stealing and intimidation of honest voters."

"Public indignation," he said, "is a hard thing to arouse.

"But when the time has come, as it has come today in Missouri, the people want no halfway measures, but a complete and unequivocable cleanup of the unsavory situation."

The governor directed attention of the women voters to his "obligation to submit special legislation, then called the roll of these idle bills he said should become law:

"The bill to insure a secret ballot; another to set up a state planning commission; a measure to give Missouri official membership in the council of state governments; and one which would permit a wife to testify in child abandonment proceedings."

Speaking later before the association of Sheriffs and Chiefs of Police of Missouri, Stark declared "the elimination of organized crime depends upon three things: apprehension of offenders must be swift and sure; prosecution without delay; x x and we must have incorruptible courts in which neither money nor influence can purchase immunity for the convicted criminal."

Verdict Husband Killed His Wife

MEXICO, Mo., May 25—(AP)—A coroner's jury today returned a verdict that Mrs. Kelly R. Bragg, 76, "came to her death by a pistol shot fired by her husband."

The husband, 77, who attempted suicide after shooting his wife yesterday in their home, was reported in good condition in a hospital. He slashed at his throat with a straight razor but his jugular vein was not severed.

County Prosecutor Latney Barnes has taken no action regarding the aged man pending his recovery.

Floyd Harrison of the police force testified to going to the Bragg home after a telephone call from the retired dentist asked that a policeman be sent. Harrison repeated the statement he said Bragg made to him there: "I killed her, don't do anything for me. I want to die."

Bergdoll Be Taken In Charge

NEW YORK, May 25—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious World War draft dodger who faces a 5-year sentence as a "slacker," was turned over to military authorities late today on his return to this country after an exile of two decades in Germany.

WASHINGTON, May 25—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins instructed immigration officials at Ellis Island today to turn Grover Cleveland Bergdoll over to military authorities as soon as he reached the United States aboard the Bremen this afternoon.

She made the announcement after receiving an opinion from the department of justice.

It also advised, labor department officials said, that the labor department should maintain its position that Bergdoll has lost his citizenship. That would leave the question for final determination by the courts, it was said.

Minute To Reach Death Verdict

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 25—A jury that deliberated for one minute decreed today that Sylvester Williams, 22-year-old Negro, should die in the electric chair for the rape-murder of Miss Irene Taylor, 19, Altheimer white girl.

Circuit Judge T. G. Parham sentenced Williams to be electrocuted Friday morning, June 30. The Negro's two court-appointed attorneys said Williams waived the customary 48 hours delay between jury verdict and sentencing.

Williams pleaded guilty to the charge of first degree murder but was tried before the jury under Arkansas law governing capital crimes. The two and a half hour trial was protected by nearly 100 national guardsmen.

Soldiers and state police searched all spectators who crowded into the courtroom. Admission was by card only.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey ordered out the militia after crowds twice appeared at the Jefferson county jail here demanding the Negro. Sheriff Garland Brewster talked the crowds into dispersing on both occasions.

Miss Taylor's battered body, bound with wire and weighted, was recovered from the shallow waters of Flat Bayou near her home May 5. Williams was arrested the same day. Sheriff Brewster said the Negro admitted assaulting the girl, killing her and hiding her body in the water.

Williams, who had been transferred to Little Rock for safekeeping after the first crowd assembled here the night of his arrest, was brought back to Pine Bluff early today under a heavy guard.

Ordered To Depart

Aaron Power and Carl Carter, picked up by the police for "mooching," were questioned this morning by Chief of Police John J. O'Brien and ordered out of town. The two left "on foot" shortly before noon heading eastward.

Will Confer On Briggs Strike

DETROIT, May 25—(AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers Union, announced today he had accepted an invitation from James F. Dewey, federal conciliator, to meet late this afternoon with officials of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., whose seven plants have been closed by a strike since Monday.

More than 70,000 auto workers, only 15,000 of them Briggs employes, were made idle by the shutdown of Briggs plants.

The Briggs management said in a formal statement that 19 unauthorized strikes had occurred during the term of the contract which recently expired, and criticized Emil Mazey, president of the Briggs UAW local, for these production interruptions.

"It is evident," the statement said, "that Mr. Mazey either does not care to control his organization, or cannot do so."

Strawberry Macaroon Torte
(Serves 4 to 6)

Before the strawberry season passes, indulge in this gala dessert. Call the neighbors in and give a party. It's a party in itself, this combination of macaroons and strawberries held in place with whipped cream.

Three eggs, separated, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1¼ cup bread crumbs, 1 cup chopped nuts, 3 tablespoons water, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Separate eggs. Beat whites until stiff. Add ¼ cup sugar, beating it in to form a merangue. Beat egg yolks until thick. Add remaining sugar gradually, alternating with the water to make a fluffy mixture. Add vanilla. Combine nuts, crumbs and baking powder and add to yolk mixture. Fold in stuffy beaten whites. Bake in 3 greased 8-inch cake pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. When cool, spread with sweetened whipped cream and strawberries.

Menu

Breakfast: Tomato and lime juice, bacon rolls, jelly, coffee, milk.

Luncheon: Omelet with creamed vegetables, quick hot roll-ups, fruit bowl, tea, milk.

Dinner: Cold cuts, creamed potatoes, green beans, mixed green salad, strawberry macaroon torte, coffee, milk.

(1 dozen)

Two cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup grated nippy cheese, ⅔ to ¾ cup milk.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut or rub in shortening. Add cheese. Add milk to form a soft dough. Turn out on board. Knead lightly for 30 seconds. Divide dough into two equal portions. Roll out each portion to a circular sheet ¼ inch thick. Cut into pie-shaped pieces. Roll each piece from large end to point. Seal point. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 15 minutes.

Tamale Pie

(Serves 4 to 6)

One quart boiling water, 1 cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ pound salt pork, 1½ pounds ground round steak, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons chili powder, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1¼ cup cracker crumbs.

To boiling salted water, slowly add cornmeal. Stir until mixture begins to thicken. Simmer over hot water while preparing the meat.

Have salt pork and round steak ground together. Combine with salt, onion and chili powder. (Any good grocery carries chili powder.)

Grease a baking dish. Smooth half of the cornmeal mush over the bottom. Then add the meat mixture, and cover with remaining mush. Over the top sprinkle the cracker crumbs and dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 1 hour. Be sure the mush is cooked but not too stiff. The pie should be reasonably moist.

Veal Chop Marguerite

(Serves 4 to 6)

Six veal chops ¾ inch thick, salt, pepper, flour and butter, 1 cup vegetable stock, 1 cup diced raw celery, 1 cup raw peas, 3 small white onions, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, a tablespoon ketchup.

Sprinkle chops with salt and pepper and dust lightly with flour. Brown in pan in butter. Remove to casserole. Add stock to butter in pan. Sprinkle celery, peas and onions about chops in casserole.

Then pour stock over the meat. Bake, uncover, in slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 1 hour. Add ketchup and parsley 20 minutes before done, then cover.

Barbecued Hamburgers

(Makes about 12)

Two pounds Hamburgers, 2 tablespoons tomato catsup, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon minced garlic, ¾ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper.

Combine all the ingredients. Shape into flat patties about 5 inches wide and ¼ inch thick. Fry slowly in a little fat until well browned on both sides, turning frequently. Just before done, cover with a half a bun. This process steams the bun. Toast the other half of the bun and butter it, then add cooked Hamburger. Everyone likes this kind of hot food in summer.

By See Rice

HERE is a cake that is really fit to set before a queen! The fluffy filling is made of thickened applesauce and whipped cream which is spread generously between layers of rich spice cake and over the top. Then to decorate this luscious cake, which is really a complete dessert in itself, glazed apple slices, tinted a delicate pink, are arranged in a flower-like design.

QUEEN'S CAKE

¾ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
2 teaspoons baking powder
2½ cups soft wheat flour
1 cup raisins, chopped

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Sift flour, measure, add other dry ingredients and sift again. Add raisins to dry ingredients. To the creamed mixture add flour mixture and milk alternately, mixing well after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into two greased paper-lined layer pans. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350°F.).

FILLING

1 cup thick applesauce
1 teaspoon gelatin
½ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream

Soak gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water. Add to hot applesauce. Mix thoroughly; add sugar. Place in refrigerator until mixture is slightly thickened. Fold in stiffly whipped cream. Spread between cake layers and pile on top. Garnish with glazed apple slices, tinted a very light pink.

Beef a la Mode

Three pounds shoulder of beef, ½ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Combine all the spices and rub beef with the mixture. Stand at least 8 hours.

The next process requires salt, flour, 1 onion, 3 carrots, 1 tablespoon minced green celery leaves, ½ bay leaf, 2 cups boiling vegetable stock or water, 12 new potatoes.

Dust the prepared meat with salt and flour. Brown on all sides in drippings, using large heavy kettle or Dutch oven. Grate onion and carrots and add, with celery, bay leaf and stock or water. Cover and simmer 3 hours. Add the peeled new potatoes 40 minutes before serving.

Remove meat and surround with potatoes. Thicken gravy slightly. Add more stock or water when meat is cooking, if necessary.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By CORA ANTHONY
Director of A&P Kitchen

POULTRY values are outstanding in this week's market. Not only are chickens and ducklings much cheaper than last year but cheaper than at any time since 1932 and '33. Eggs, too, are plentiful and cheap.

Meats in general are somewhat lower than last week, particularly lamb and forequarter beef.

Western cherries are more plentiful. The cantaloupe season has begun and the first peaches and plums have already arrived from Georgia. Most of us, however, will continue to depend on bananas, grapefruit, oranges, pineapple, rhubarb, and strawberries.

An ample supply of staple vegetables is available.

Wheat Declines In Profit Taking

CHICAGO, May 25.—(AP)—After reaching new seasonal highs of 78¼c for July and September contracts and 79⅛c for December, wheat prices declined more than a cent today as the market absorbed heavy profit taking.

Rains in the spring wheat belt and in spots of the winter wheat belt and predictions of scattered showers and cooler weather over much of the grain producing country encouraged the selling.

Wheat closed ½ to ⅞ cent lower than yesterday. July and September 77⅛c to 77¼c; corn ½ cent off to ½ cent up, July 51½c to 51⅝c; September 52½c to 52⅝c; oats ¼ to ½ cent higher.

Prices Decline On Stock Market

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—After hitting a fast rallying pace at the opening of today's market, sufficient profit taking opposition appeared to chop down prices substantially at the close.

At the best gains ran up 2 or more points, but final plus marks generally were in small fractions and numerous issues finished unchanged to down a shade. Motors were under some pressure at the last.

The ticker tape fell behind for a brief moment at the start, then everted to a slow crawl. Transfers for the five hours were around 1,000,000 shares.

On the side of the forenoon upturn were a number of factors, brokers said. Among these was the announcement of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that congressional leaders and the President had agreed upon certain tax revision measures which would "definitely" contribute to business recovery.

In addition, some mild inflation thinking was in evidence as talk was heard of a new administration lending-spending sortie.

Tells Of Sailors' Courage During Long Wait Under Sea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Judson Thomas Bland, 30, of Norfolk, Va., an electrician's mate on the submarine Squalus, in better condition than some of his fellow survivors, gave the following interview Wednesday night. He was clad in hospital pajamas, bath robe and sandals.)

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 25—(AP)—"I'm very happy to be here to say I was with a very fine bunch of shipmates. I never saw a crew handle so well a situation that really needed good handling.

"We made a perfectly normal fast dive. It was a test dive and the test superintendent was timing it and clocking it as we went down.

"Then something happened. It just couldn't be helped. It was one of those things that might go wrong with any complicated mechanical thing.

Obeyed Immediately

"We started taking in water through the ventilation valve. We knew something had gone wrong aft. The captain came below. He was in complete charge at all times. All of his orders were carried out immediately.

"The men worked to shut off the water. Then the diving officer came below and gave orders to blow the tanks. We took a terrific angle. It was about 45 degrees, I think. One of the men closed the door to the after part of the ship. It took super strength to do it and I don't see how he did it.

"All of the men possible got out of the after compartments. I don't know if all the after compartments were flooded and I hope they were not.

Men Were Cheerful

"Every word from every man was a cheerful one. Beating on the hull was our only means of communication. Two men forward and two in the after part of the bow kept beating signals all the time. We knew the Falcon would arrive at 4:30 this morning. We knew she had excellent equipment and wonderful divers. I'm not afraid to say that not one man ever thought he would not be rescued.

"The air got a little bad just before we came up because we were trying to conserve the oxygen. When the first rescue party came down you can imagine how happy we were. We sent up the weakest one first. I was in the second rescue party.

"I hope all the rest will be found."

Observer Sees Baer As Losing Some Of Speed

Still Can Hit Like A Mule, States His Manager

By GAYLE TALBOT

FERNDALE, N. Y., May 25.—(AP)—A first-hand critical inspection of Max Baer at his training camp reveals, as one might have expected, that the former playboy champion isn't quite the man he was four or five years ago.

Max likes to think he is, and he still can out-talk a forest full of parrots, but the simple truth is the easy years have deprived the handsome Californian of a fraction of his speed and have reduced his once-marvelous stamina. In other words, Max looks and fights his 30 years.

It's still an open question whether Max has lost enough of his speed and strength to cost him his scrap with Lou Nova a week from tonight in Yankee Stadium. Perhaps he has enough left to let him sail out and smash the youngster to the canvas. But this much is certain: The longer it goes the shorter will be Baer's chances of victory.

On the word of his manager, Ancil Hoffman, Max has worked harder for this fight than any in his career. He's been training his heart out for seven weeks here in the hills.

Hoffman displayed an intense interest in Nova and wanted to know a dozen things about him. He wondered if Lou always kept his hands high. He was assured that he did.

"Maybe he does when he's sparring," Ancil conceded. "But will he remember all that after Max hits him once? Whatever else they say about us, Max still can hit like a mule."

Max still is easy to hit. One sparring partner, a big Negro named Elza Thompson, rattled Baer's teeth with a series of rights through their two round session. And Thompson's right isn't anything to approach Nova's hard, short snapper.

The combined opinion of several fight characters who attended the workout, including old Harry Wills and Larry White, manager of Fred Apostoli, was that Baer had reached as good condition "as he can expect at his age."

"It's a shame he didn't get this serious about six years ago," said White.

With three more workouts scheduled through Monday, Baer is down to fighting weight, 210½ pounds.

Paper Carriers In Softball Battle

The Sedalia Democrat-Capital softball team came through Wednesday evening in a game at Liberty Park and defeated the Kansas City Star-Times ball club by a lopsided score of 17 to 6.

After the game when the players started on their way back to their duties as "paper slingers" they turned into fire "laddies" and helped Tommy Dickman extinguish a blaze which started under the hood of his Ford coupe.

"Ha, Ha," said the Democrat-Capital carriers, "We thought the Star boys had called the fire department to put us out, we were so hot in making runs. But the fire companies were only called for Dickman's "flivver."

Batteries were: Albert Lindsey and C. Weinberger for the Star-Times; Sye Tucker and "Bud" Hayes for the Democrat-Capital.

Sufferers in Sedalia who have not yet given KruGon the opportunity to prove its difference from many of the medicines tried before . . . have in store for them a pleasant surprise. Many hundreds of local people already have learned that with KruGon's use those intestinal impurities are eliminated and relief is given from aches and pains over the body, dizzy spells, biliousness, night risings and backache, indigestion, soured gassy feeling after eating, headaches and nervousness when caused from faulty elimination. Rev. P. T. Sumners, Route No. 3, Warsaw, Mo., (just southwest of Sedalia), a well known and respected local man who is a retired Baptist Minister, relates his experience with KruGon in a statement reaching the McFarland and Robinson Drug Co., Sedalia:

"For forty years I had been wanting a remedy like KruGon," said Rev. Sumners. "For it was the first medicine I found in all that time to give me satisfactory relief from a stubborn case of constipation. Those intestinal poisons had taken their toll and I could not eat without severe bloating after every meal. Naturally this discomfort made me restless at night until I could not sleep and was upset continually. Then those dreadful aches and pains developed and settled over my body, my lower limbs were especially affected and my knees were in a dreadful condition. They would ache so at night I would go to bed with a hot water bottle trying to get relief. It was so discouraging trying to go through life feeling like I did and I don't know what I would have done if I had not begun KruGon when I did."

"Relatives in Sedalia persuaded me to give KruGon a trial first and what it has now done for me is surprising," continued Rev. Sumners, "I have no more constipation worries, that bloating and digestion distress no longer bothers me and I now sleep like a child the whole night through. Even those dreadful body pains have been relieved and this laxative-tonic formula has really meant so much to me. These little red capsules contained just what I had wanted for so long before and have been such a blessing."

KruGon is sold by McFarland and Robinson Drug Co., 104 West Main Street, Sedalia and by leading druggists in surrounding towns.

• The Sport Roundup

By Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, May 25—(AP)—Tittle-Tattle: Baseball attendance is off 25 per cent and you can check that with owners in cities where the newspapers have turned off the heat. . . . That American Association flag race looks like a four-club dog fight from away back yonder. . . . Newspaper men from over there say if Louis beats Galento, New Jersey will have to double its relief roles.

Call The Cops

Harry Martin, captain of the Petersburg (Va.) high school team, is running bases like Pepper Martin in his prime. . . In 15 games he has swiped 33 bags, including three steals of home in four tries.

Mail Box: Ed Barrow: Scout Gene McCann has just mailed you a four-star rave report on Porter Vaughan, the U. of Richmond pitcher. . . . U. S. L. T. A.: Did you know that last summer 25 Miami tennisers played in 60 tournaments in 25 states and won 65 championships? . . Bill McKechnie: Main beef of the Cincy wolves seems to be that while you are much nearer the top than you were a year ago, you're also a lot closer to the cellar.

Players' Inc.

Members of the Milwaukee ball club fine themselves for misdemeanors on the field. . . . Typical fines: ten cents for taking more than three swings in batting practice; 25 cents for not running out bunts; two bits for reporting late for practice, etc.

Believe it or not: Max Baer swears he hasn't had a cigarette in three months and has plumb forgot how to bend an elbow. . . Seattle reports a 25-grand advance sale for next month's Al Hostak-Solly Krieger middleweight bout, which is five grand more than Mike Jacobs took in for Krieger vs. Billy Conn. . . . Frankie Parker, once a first ten netter, is telling 'em on the coast he's going to remake himself into a national champ.

Today's Guest Star

Dan Desmond, Sioux City (Ia) Journal: "The Sioux City Cowboys have struck a new economy note. They get a few old balls for infield practice and a new one for the pitcher warming up, but that's all. . . . Batting practice has been discontinued."

Quickies: Mickey Cochrane's new job as manufacturer's agent sometimes nets him as much as $15,000 commission for one deal. . . . Freddie Wolcott, Rice's cinder track ace, is turning down all invites to tour Europe this summer because he wants to have his tonsils out. . . . The Pacific coast conference will get a no spring football practice resolution at next month's meeting. . . and reject it.

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Scooparade: Joe Louis has bet a $10.00 hat Baer stops Nova in five heats. . . . Strange as it may seem, Bill McKechnic is hearing the wolves out in Rhineland. Some of the knockers think the Reds should be over the .700 mark. . . . Tip: Mike Jacobs told Billy Conn: "Get a title — any kind of a title. Television is coming and it will mean a lot for the champions." Hence Conn's rush to sign for Melio Bettina. . . . Recent survey showed Johnny Mize only three games behind Babe Ruth's mark of a homer every 2.57 games made the year the great man slammed 60 round trippers for an all-time high.

Majoring in the minors: Kiki Cuyler, the old outfielder, has rooted his Chattanooga Lookouts from seventh to first place in the Southern Association. . . . Scouts say either of two guys now shortstopping for Kansas City will be ready to step into Frankie Crosetti's shoes when and if. . . . The Yankees are thinking of putting the lights in several of their farm club plants. . . . First 1939 manager to feel the ax was Charlie Clancy of the Winston-Salem, of the Piedmont league club.

Old Pal Dept.

Pro football reporters in Chicago say Charles Bidwill of the Cardinals and George Halas of the Bears either are inseparable pals or don't dare let each other out of sight. . . . . Now they're coming east together ostensibly to see Baer and Nova. . . . It ought to be fun when Halas tries to do business with Sid Luckman of Columbia and Bidwell with Marshall Goldberg of Pitt, which confidentially, is what they're coming for.

Latest fight dope: Nova has a cold and Baer is wearing a mask to protect a sore beak. . . . First prices make Baer a 5 to 7 shot. . . . Patrick Edward Comiskey is developing a short left to support his sleep producing right. . . Looks like Fred Apostoli is out of luck here this summer unless they throw him against Ceferino Garcia. . . . Solly Krieger didn't add to his box office value when he lost to Conn and furthermore he's liable to lose to Al Hostak in Seattle next month. . . . Tony Galento is due to pitch camp at Asbury Park tomorrow.

World's Fair Extra

They're calling young Dominic Dimaggio the best ball player in the Pacific coast league barring the pitchers. . . . (Joe Devine, Yankee scout, is trailing him). . . Brother Vince is hitting like a fool for Kansas City. . . Yankee outfield for tomorrow: Dimaggio, rf.; Dimaggio, cf.; Dimaggio, lf.

Cocktail Hour: Our glorious Dodgers are beginning to look like their old selves what with hitting into double plays and things. . . . Billy Werber is making a rep for himself as the best leadoff man in the National league. . . Jimmy Nichols, unattached pro from the coast, has only one arm, but his 155 missed getting him into the National open by only five strokes. You ought to see him whang that ball down the fairways.

School Boards Could Help Out On Graduation Costs

By Olive Roberts Barton

Miss Briggs went to her principal after school and asked for an audience. She taught the class that would be in high school by fall. Commencement was just ahead.

"I have been wondering about the expense these children and their parents are going to have," she said. "Can you see any way out?"

Miss Jones tapped her pencil thoughtfully and nodded. "It is on my mind every year," she admitted. "I have never found an answer yet."

"They aren't assessed very much for their class pictures and the printing of their little annual book," said Miss Briggs, "but they feel that they have to have new trappings for the exercises. Some children come of families which have scarcely enough to eat."

"I hardly know what to do," said Miss Jones. "We could dispense with any formal closing, but since it is a tradition, many of the better-fixed parents would resent it."

"Couldn't we ask the board to provide gowns and caps for each one?" suggested Miss Briggs. "Then anything at all could be worn underneath. Shoes don't matter so much, except with those who are on the program."

Taxpayers Would Fuss

"Yes, I know. I have taken it up with the board, and asked them to do something of the sort, but the answer is that the taxpayers would fuss. They are behind with their budget, and you know how some of us had to wait a couple of months for our salaries."

"Yes, and if we did that, every single boy and girl would feel for the rest of his life that he had been slighted. What can we do?"

"Just what we've always done. I shall make it known that everything is to be as simple as possible. That will help. Some day, perhaps, the board will appropriate money for graduation expenses. In the meantime, you and I can only follow the rule."

What would you do if—

Your household has no servant and you are expecting dinner guests. Would you—

(a) Let your husband admit them, and show them where to put their wraps?

(b) Go to the door yourself?

Answers

1. The hostess.
2. She stands at her place and tells each one.
3. The person who is nearest it.

PICTURING a sandlot baseball game, the design of the forthcoming U. S. baseball commemorative is shown above. This stamp will be released for the first time at the Cooperstown, N. Y., post office June 12, and throughout the country as soon thereafter as distribution will permit.

Originally, the Post Office Department planned to use the figure of some notable identified with baseball, but controversy raged so hotly that the government resorted to the sandlot portrait as typically American.

Postmaster General Farley has announced that in connection with the visit to the United States of the British monarchs, facilities will be provided at Washington, D. C., for applying the postmark, "Royal Train R. P. O., U. S. A., June 9, 1939," to philatelic mail.

Persons desiring covers with that postmark should forward them to the Second Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Railway Mail Service, Washington, D. C. No special cachet will be used and the covers will not be actually transported on the royal train.

Covers must be fully prepaid at the ordinary rate of postage. Unpaid and insufficiently prepaid covers will be treated in accordance with regulations.

No covers will be accepted after 12 noon, June 9.

Interesting new issues: Bulgaria—four colorful pictorials commemorating the centenary of the railroad in this Balkan country; France—semi-postal marking the 50th anniversary of the Eiffel Tower; Iceland—three values honoring the New York World's Fair. One shows the trylon and perisphere.

According to a published list of rules for table behavior in colonial times, colonial children were not allowed to ask for anything at the table, nor speak unless first spoken to, nor bite into a whole slice of bread.

What Do You Know About Your Body? Rate Yourself In Weekly Health Quiz

(This is the first of a series of weekly health quizzes prepared by Dr. Fishbein.)

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

How much do you know about health? Here's a chance to test yourself and at the same time acquire some valuable knowledge.

Read these five questions and try to answer them. Credit yourself with 20 points for every one you answer correctly. If your mark is 100, obviously you are well informed. Sixty labels you as reasonably well informed, but if you get less than 60, you should learn more about your body and its care.

Here are the questions:

1. The increase in the number of deaths from cancer is due to: (a) the coming of the motor car; (b) the use of cosmetics; (c) people are living longer; (d) too many tall buildings; (e) it is contagious.

2. Meat is an unsatisfactory food because: (a) it makes people savage; (b) it is indigestible; (c) it is frequently infected; (d) it is hard to digest; (e) it contains no vitamins.

3. A healthy office worker should eat per day: (a) 8,000 calories; (b) 5,000 calories; (c) 3,000 calories; (d) 1,000 calories; (e) 500 calories.

4. When you have a cold, you should: (a) go to a movie; (b) drink lots of alcohol; (c) take a long walk; (d) ask the druggist for something; (e) go to bed.

5. If you snore loudly, you are: (a) sleeping in a bed that is too soft; (b) drinking too much water; (c) plunging in the stock market; (d) suffering with enlarged adenoids; (e) sleeping on your back.

Here are the answers:

1. People are living longer. Most deaths from cancer occur in people past 40 years of age. Cancer is not contagious.

2. All wrong. Meat is rich in proteins, phosphorus and iron. Liver is rich in vitamins A, B and iron and in other essential substances. Meat is inspected and seldom infected. We do not become like what we eat; therefore, it will not make us savage.

3. For an office worker 3,000 calories is correct. For heavy work, one may require as much as 6,000 or 7,000 calories. It is almost impossible to get the essential substances for health and life with much less than 1,200 calories.

4. The best advice is to go to bed and call a doctor. Neglected colds are sometimes followed by pneumonia. There is no proof that alcohol prevents or cures a cold.

5. Probably suffering with obstruction in your breathing tract and sleeping on your back. There is no evidence that snoring is caused by anything but mechanical conditions in the nose and throat. When you sleep on your back, your tongue may fall backward into such a position as to interfere with proper breathing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
